3. Policy and Initiatives Regarding the Prevention of Slave Labor and Human Trafficking

In preparing this statement, the Company consulted and collaborated with the Group companies it owns or controls.

Our measures and actions are listed below:

1) Establishment of a Human Rights Risk Monitoring System

We incorporated human rights risks into the Compliance Committee's risk management system. The committee is composed of management members and oversees group-wide activities.

2) The Osaki Group's Charter of Corporate Behavior

The Osaki Group states in "The Osaki Group's Charter of Corporate Behavior" outlining the guidelines for corporate behavior, that the group shall "conduct business that respects the human rights of all persons and take no part in any discriminatory action at all phases of our businesses," "pursue work practices that help our employees to develop their career and capabilities and provide them with fair working conditions and opportunities to grow professionally," and "build effective corporate governance system for the conduct of business, strive to raise awareness of the Charter's principle throughout the group, and encourage behavior in its supply chain based on the principle of this Charter."

3) Compliance rules / instruction manuals

The “Compliance Manual” outlining operational guidelines in accordance with the Osaki Group’s Charter of Corporate Behavior, specifies “Compliance with legal requirements,” “Respect for human rights and prohibition of discrimination,” “Prohibition of harassment,” “Safety and health in the workplace,” and “Compliance with labor laws.” In addition, the handbook for this manual, “The Osaki Group’s Compliance Handbook” (“EDMI General Compliance Rule” within the EDMI Group) is utilized for the education of group employees.

4) Internal Audit Response

The Company has conducted the Risk Self-Inspection System among OSAKI Electric and its group companies, based on human rights risk monitoring system in its risk management system. In the future, we aim to further strengthen management through PDCA (Plan-Do-Check-Act) cycle of the "Risk Self-Inspection System."

EDMI has planned to conduct auditing of the status of compliance with human rights at its manufacturing plants in FY2020. However, due to travel restrictions against the expansion of COVID-19 virus, we forewent auditing to FY2022. We will consider the timing of implementation while assessing the status of the termination of travel restrictions.

5) Establishment of a helpline

The Osaki Group has established a reporting system through a helpline (whistle blowing) that serves as the contact for reports and consultations including those relating to human rights for all group employees both within and outside Japan, with the aim of identifying and correcting any issues at an early stage. Within Japan, we have also established an external reporting contact through a third-party institution to allow reports to be made anonymously. In addition, whistle-blowers are protected by stipulating that the termination of employment or any other disadvantageous treatment on the grounds of such reports is prohibited.

6) Supply chain management

The Company formulated a Basic Procurement Policy that incorporates the content of human rights compliance and will disclose the Policy on our website in FY2022. We have also incorporated questions related human rights in the survey sent to our suppliers. We will further address on the confirmation of no human rights violation in the supply chain at quality audits.

EDMI Group has formulated risk management rules for the process of selecting business partners. Accordingly, EDMI completed investigation on top 40 customers with regards to human rights violations, and we received responses from 80% of the customers in subject. Out of those responded, 90% were aware of the Modern Slavery Act and have conducted employee training, 70% conducts audit regularly. EDMI Group will analyze the investigative results on the business partners and plan the future actions, and conduct surveys of new suppliers whenever necessary.

Through these surveys described the above, no case of forced labor, child labor, or trafficking in the supply chain has been recognized at this time.

As for other group companies, we will continue to consider effective methods in assessing the issue.

We will continue to assess the effectiveness of the Group's human rights risk management and appropriately identify human rights risks in the supply chain by continuing to implement the initiatives described above,

7) Training and education

In aim to enhance employee awareness, an article on human rights was published in an in-house magazine. Furthermore, educational programs on human rights were provided to employees of domestic Group companies.

The Company conducts education on human rights for employees at domestic purchasing department. The company also guides all managers or higher positioned employees to take e-learning programs for anti-harassment. We will continue to expand training on human rights groupwide by utilizing e-learning programs.

ENEGATE, a domestic group company, conducts human rights education every year and continues its efforts to raise awareness on the human rights issues. In FY2021, to prevent the spread of COVID19 virus, in-class training was provided to registration staff members only, while other employees took e-learning programs.

EDMI group provides education Code of Conduct on human rights and Modern Slavery Act to its employees. More than 90% of employees at the headquarters in Singapore, sales subsidiaries in UK, Australia, and New Zealand, and at main manufacturing plants in Malaysia and China have been trained. EDMI hosts education courses once in 2 months, targeting those who have not taken the courses and those who joined the company recently. In addition, EDMI plans to provide human rights education once a year to all employees.
